

WEATHER and CHEMICAL WARFARE – Part Eighteen: ZOMBIE APOCALYPSE

This ain't cute or cool. Look at the demon behind the zombie fish. Here's part of the description for this book: When Tom rescued Frankie the goldfish from his older brother's evil science experiment by zapping him back to life with a battery, he never expected his pet to become a BIG FAT ZOMBIE GOLDFISH with incredible hypnotic powers . . . but he has to admit it's helpful, especially when they are thwarting his big brother's evil plans.

Isaiah 26:18-21 – We (Israel) have been with child, we have been in pain, we have as it were brought forth wind; we have not wrought any deliverance in the earth; neither have the inhabitants of the world fallen. God told the Israelites to destroy the inhabitants of Canaan so that they could go in and live – but they never conquered them all. Thy dead (regular dead) men shall live, together with my (Isaiah) dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead. (Hebrew Bible: Awake and sing, dwellers of the dust for the dew of lights is your dew; and the earth departed spirits (rephaim) shall make fall.) Come, My people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation (Hebrew: fury) be overpast. For, behold, the LORD cometh out of His place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity: the earth also shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain.

(To me this speaks of the rapture and time of tribulation)

And the departed spirits shall make the earth fall – there is a mixture of fallen angels/demons working with evil men right now much less they are trying to open portals for more darkness to come through with cern and all of their technology.

I do not recommend reading the book of Enoch as it is not part of the Bible and does contain doctrinal errors. However, the information I am sharing about the giants/nephilim seems to be born out in agreement with the KJV Bible.

1 Enoch 15:8-9, 11-12 And now the giants (Gen.6:4 – offspring of fallen angels and human women were giants in Hebrew, giborim, nephilim, rephaim), who have been begotten from body and flesh, will be called evil spirits on earth, and their dwelling-places will be upon the earth. Evil spirits proceed from their bodies; because they are created from above, their beginning and first basis being from the holy watchers, they will be evil spirits upon the earth, and will be called evil spirits. And the spirits of the giants, who cast themselves upon the clouds, will be destroyed and fall, and will battle and cause destruction on the earth, and do evil; they will take no kind of food, nor will they become thirsty, and they will be invisible. And these spirits will rise up against the children of men and against the women, because they have proceeded from them, in the days of murder and destruction.

They can certainly live inside of a cloned body and wreak havoc that way as well as inhabit a completely wicked person like those illuminati bloodline families who have not broken generational curses off so that their satanic powers will be stronger. They study and seek how to curse themselves and bring down more dark power onto themselves.

Enoch 7:2 - And the women became pregnant and gave birth to great giants whose heights were three hundred cubits. (450 ft).

There are remains of these giants all over this earth.

Enoch 10:9-15 - And to Gabriel YAHWEH said, "Proceed against the bastards and the reprobates and against the children of adultery; and destroy the children of adultery and expel the children of the Watchers from among the people. And send them against one another so that they may be destroyed in the fight, for length of days have they not." 10:10 "They will beg you everything-for their fathers on behalf of themselves-because they hope to live an eternal life. They hope that each one of them will live a period of five hundred years." 10:11 And to Michael YAHWEH said, "Make known to Semyaza and the others who are with him, who fornicated with the women, that they will die together with them in all their defilement." 10:12 "And when they and all their children have battled with each other, and when they have seen the destruction of their beloved ones, bind them for seventy generations underneath the rocks of the ground until the day of their judgment and of their consummation, until the eternal judgment is concluded." 10:13 "In those days they will lead them into the bottom of the fire-and in torment-in the prison where they will be locked up forever." 10:14 "And at the time when they will burn and die, those who collaborated with them will be bound together with them from henceforth unto the end of all generations."

10:15 “And destroy all the souls of pleasure and the children of the Watchers, for they have done injustice to man.”

The dead spirits do not have to come back in giant bodies necessarily. But the elite have also been working to revive giants around the world.

RESEARCHER MICHAEL McCLELLAN:

These giants were evil enough in life. Indeed, some were abominations (freaks) such as the "mythical" race of Kyklopes (Cyclopes), circular-eyed giants, some of whom had only one eye in the center of their foreheads. Most of these giants consumed human flesh. Some were great kings, cruel and gigantic in stature, who used the black arts to defeat their enemies. It is said that some of these kings, now phantoms residing in Sheol, still have influence over the leaders of this earth today ... and those to come. One in particular will take possession of the beast of Revelation halfway through his reign.

Enoch 7:4-6 - And when men could no longer sustain them, the giants turned against them and devoured mankind (cannibals). And they began to sin against birds, and beasts, and reptiles, and fish, and to devour one another's flesh (cannibals), and drink the blood. Then the earth laid accusation against the lawless ones.

SPIRIT COOKING

Spirit cooking refers to “a sacrament in the religion of Thelema which was founded by Aleister Crowley” and involves an occult performance during which menstrual blood, breast milk, urine and sperm are used to create a “painting”.

The ceremony is, “meant to symbolize the union between the microcosm, Man, and the macrocosm, the Divine, which is a representation of one of the prime maxims in Hermeticism “As Above, So Below.”

“Abramovic is known for her often-gory art that confronts pain and ritual. Her first performance involved repeatedly, stabbing herself in her hands. The next performance featured her throwing her nails, toenails, and hair into a flaming five-point star — which she eventually jumped inside of, causing her to lose consciousness,” writes Cassandra Fairbanks.

Another image shows Abramovic posing with a bloody goat’s head – a representation of the occult symbol Baphomet.

Spirit cooking is also an “occult practice used during sex cult rituals, as explained in the book “Spirit cooking with essential aphrodisiac recipes,” notes Mike Cernovich.

Thank you Ms. Jennifer who shared the following story with me back in 2016.

This is Blut and Michael. As a “Black Swan” –someone who willingly offers blood to those who feed on it – the 28-year-old allows him to cut her with razors so he drinks the blood to gain “energy”.

She said: "If you drink too much you do get sick - it doesn't take much blood for Michael to get his energy."

CANNIBALISM RESEARCH IN 2013

Look up incidents of cannibalism and you will see that it has drastically risen in this century alone.

References to acts of cannibalism are sprinkled throughout many religious and historical documents, such as reports of cooked human flesh being sold in 11th-century English markets during times of famine.

It is perhaps fitting that the conference should take place in Europe because the region has a long chronicle of cannibalism, from prehistory through the Renaissance, right up to the 21st-century Meiwes case.

In addition, the area has bequeathed us a bounty of fictional cannibals, including Dracula, who is arguably the world's most famous consumer of human blood and a gory harbinger of the current pop culture fascination with vampires and zombies.

Europe boasts the oldest fossil evidence of cannibalism. In a 1999 Science article, French paleontologists reported that 100,000-year-old bones from six Neanderthal victims found in a French cave called Moula-Guercy had been broken by other Neanderthals in such a way as to extract marrow and brains. In addition, tool marks on the mandible and femur suggested that tongue and thigh meat had been cut off for consumption.

Thank you Vicki H. for sharing a message from Scott Hensler on Tin Foil Hat Club with Ricky Ray. I watched these on youtube and every single one that I watched has been removed. However, I took notes and want to share that Ricky who was in the illuminati said in the interview that after they make a sacrifice they will take a big needle and insert it at the brain stem and go up into the pineal gland and extract the blood from there and drink it. (This is what is called loosh.)

Bonnie K. sent me a video where a lady pieced together Q-anon's meme's along with the research "leaked" by Julian Assange about the whole Podesta e-mails and pizza gate and decoded what they were talking about when they mentioned wal-nut sauce. They are eating/drinking the victims brains. PIZZAGATE is not anything new.

The cannibalism at Moula-Guercy wasn’t an isolated incident in prehistory. In the past decade, researchers have reported other evidence that Neanderthals continued eating each other until just before their disappearance. In one particularly grisly discovery at the El Sidrón cave in Spain, paleontologists discovered that an extended family of 12 individuals had been dismembered, skinned and then eaten by other Neanderthals about 50,000 years ago.

When early Homo sapiens began engaging in cannibalism is a topic of debate, although it is clear they eventually did, says Sandra Bowdler, an emeritus professor of archeology at the University of Western Australia. Evidence is scant that this happened in early human hunter-gatherer communities, she says, although in 2009 Fernando Rozzi, at the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique, in Paris, reported finding a Neanderthal jaw bone that may have been butchered by early humans.

Even if Europe’s Homo sapiens didn’t consume each other in prehistory, they certainly did in more modern times. References to acts of cannibalism are sprinkled throughout many religious and historical documents, such as the reports that cooked human flesh was being sold in 11th-century English markets during times of famine, says Jay Rubenstein, a historian at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

However, the world’s first cannibal incident reported by multiple, independent, first-hand accounts took place during the Crusades by European soldiers, Rubenstein says.

These first-hand stories agree that in 1098, after a successful siege and capture of the Syrian city Ma’arra, Christian soldiers ate the flesh of local Muslims. Thereafter the facts get murky, Rubenstein says. Some chroniclers report that the bodies were secretly consumed in “wicked banquets” borne out of famine and without the authorization of military leaders, Rubenstein says. Other reports suggest the cannibalism was done with tacit approval of military superiors who wished to use stories of the barbaric act as a psychological fear tactic in future Crusade battles.

Part of the problem was that cannibalism at Ma'arra simply didn't fit in with the European self-image. In medieval times, cultural enemies—not military or religious heroes—were commonly depicted as cannibals or giants, “especially in narratives of territorial invasion and conquest,” argues Geradine Heng, in Cannibalism, The First Crusade and the Genesis of Medieval Romance. “Witches, Jews, savages, Orientals, and pagans are conceivable as—indeed, must be—cannibals; but in the 12th-century medieval imaginary, the Christian European subject cannot.”

By the 16th century, cannibalism was not just part of the mental furniture of Europeans; it was a common part of everyday medicine from Spain to England.

Initially, little bits of pulverized mummies imported from Egypt were used in prescriptions against disease, but the practice soon expanded to include the flesh, skin, bone, blood, fat and urine of local cadavers, such as recently executed criminals and bodies dug up illegally from graveyards, says University of Durham's Richard Sugg, who published a book in 2011 called Mummies, Cannibals and Vampires: The History of Corpse Medicine from the Renaissance to the Victorians.

Medicinal cannibalism reached a feverish pitch around 1680, Sugg says. But the practice can be traced back to the Greek doctor Galen, who recommended human blood as part of some remedies in the 2nd century A.D., and it continued all the way into the 20th century. In 1910, a German pharmaceutical catalog was still selling mummy, says Louise Noble, who also wrote a book on the topic called Medicinal Cannibalism in Early Modern English Literature and Culture.

While Europeans ate “mummy” to cure their physical ailments, the same culture sent missionaries and colonists to the New World to cure New World indigenous people of their purported barbaric cannibalism, some of which was entirely fabricated as a rationale for conquest, Bowdler says. “It's certainly possible that Europeans were consuming more human flesh at the time than people in the New World,” Sugg says.

* “It’s a big paradox,” Noble adds. The term cannibal was being used to describe someone inferior while the “civilized in Europe were also eating bits of the human body,” she says.*

The word cannibal first entered the English language in the mid-16th century by means of Spanish explorers, says Carmen Nocentelli, a 16th-century comparative literature and culture scholar at the University of New Mexico. It derives from the Spanish word Canibales, which was used by Columbus in his diaries to describe indigenous people of the Caribbean islands who were rumored to be eaters of human flesh, Nocentelli says. In his diaries, it is clear Columbus didn’t initially believe the rumors, she adds.

But the name stuck: Cannibal became a popular term used to describe people in the New World. It was certainly sexier than the Greek and then Latin word “anthropophagi,” which a 1538 dictionary defines as “people in Asia, which eate [sic] men,” Nocentelli says.

Because there’s evidence that colonists exaggerated accounts of cannibalism in the New World, some scholars have argued that all cannibalism reports in the colonies were fictitious. But the balance of evidence suggest some reports were certainly true, Bowdler says, namely, from human blood proteins found in fossilized feces at American Southwest sites to first-hand reports from reliable sources about cannibal practices among Mesoamerican Aztecs and Brazilian Tupinambá. “One of the reasons cannibalism is so controversial is because we have few detailed accounts of how it worked in society,” Bowdler adds.

Bowdler has been compiling a list of well-documented accounts of worldwide cannibalism that she will present at the conference this weekend. In particular, she’ll discuss categories of cannibalism where consuming human flesh is “not considered out-and-out bad” in the society where it is practiced, she says.

One such category is survival cannibalism, where people consume each other out of absolute necessity, such as the 16 survivors of a 1972 plane crash in the Andes mountains or the members of Sir John Franklin’s failed 1845 expedition to the Arctic.

Another category is mortuary cannibalism, the consumption of the dead during their funeral rites, practiced through the 20th century in the Eastern Highlands Province of Papua New Guinea and the Brazilian and Peruvian Amazon. “This is not, as we may instinctively imagine, morbid and repulsive,” notes the University of Manchester’s Sarah-Louise Flowers in her conference abstract, “but is instead an act of affection and respect for the dead person, as a well as being a means of helping survivors to cope with their grief.”

Lev.26:28-29 – Then I will walk contrary unto you also in fury; and I, even I, will chastise you seven times for your sins. And ye shall eat the flesh of your sons, and the flesh of your daughters shall ye eat.

Ezekiel 5:10-11 – Therefore the fathers shall eat the sons in the midst of thee, and the sons shall eat their fathers; and I will execute judgments in thee, and the whole remnant of thee will I scatter into all the winds. Wherefore, as I live, saith the Lord GOD; Surely, because thou hast defiled My sanctuary with all thy detestable things, and with all thine abominations, therefore will I also diminish thee; neither shall Mine eye spare, neither will I have any pity.

Jeremiah 19:9 – And I will cause them to eat the flesh of their sons and the flesh of their daughters, and they shall eat every one the flesh of his friend in the siege (battle) and straightness (famine), wherewith their enemies, and they that seek their lives, shall straiten (trouble) them.

2 Kings 6:26-29 – And as the king of Israel was passing by upon the wall, there cried a woman unto him, saying, Help, my lord, O king. And he said, If the LORD do not help thee, whence (how) shall I help thee? Out of the barnfloor, or out of the winepress? And the king said unto her, What aileth thee? And she answered, This woman said unto me, Give thy son, that we may eat him today, and we will eat my son tomorrow. So we boiled my son, and did eat him: and I said unto her on the next day, Give thy son, that we may eat him: and she hath hid her son.
